Inergetix supports the idea of Mind/Body dualism

Four hundred years ago Descartes made a decisive step into a new direction in that he formulated that Body and Mind are two completely separate entities which today is called Cartesian dualism. All of the consequent new discoveries were made possible because this freed scientists from centuries of pseudo-religious mixing of mind and matter-concepts.

He struggled with the question if there was any possibility that the mind (an immaterial thing) could have any direct effect on the material world which is since then called the "problem of interactionism".

(http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dualism_\(philosophy_of_mind\)))

The centuries that followed decided that "the mind cannot have a direct influence on the material world" and the MIND/MATTER dualism is now an accepted basis of contemporary science. As a result in Medicine for example every change that cannot be traced back to a material intervention is called "Placebo" or psychosomatic/ believe/faith healing. At Inergetix we have made this generally agreed concept our own and hold that the Inergetix-CoRe System™ is exclusively a spiritual tool which means that it assists to make beneficial changes on the level of mind and consciousness.

Body of beliefs of all members of the Temple of AIM and any user of the Inergetix-CoRe System™ and the way they will present our services to our clients.

1. Because we support the generally accepted idea of the Cartesian Dualism we cannot intend or expect any changes on the physical health level by the methods we are using with the Inergetix-CoRe System™.
2. If positive or negative changes on the physical health level occur we agree that this can only be a synchronistic event without any causal connection to the actual treatment with the Inergetix-CoRe System™ or in other words it is a Placebo effect.

3. With the disciples of Descartes, such as Nicholas Malebranche we believe that all mind-body interactions required the direct intervention of God. What the therapist with the help of the Inergetix-CoRe System™ does is to be a facilitator for this to happen. Neither the therapist nor Inergetix can or does claim to be the causative factor for positive or undesirable effects on the physical health level. We should also make clear that if we use sound, electricity, magnetism, light or other forms of energy that this is used only to increase the believe/placebo effect of the spiritual intervention similarly as in the church wine and incense are used.

This is doubtless the case for the Inergetix informational functions but also every scientist would agree that the energy intensities used by the energy applicators are so minute that a physiological effect is not possible.

Note:

When we anywhere use the words treat, diagnose, disease, remedy, patient we only refer to treating, diagnosing spiritual and mind diseases. The only function the Inergetix-CoRe System™ can have is to propose spiritual remedies or the spiritual meaning/symbolism of material remedies. Also if it indicates any organs or part of the body this is not indicating any disease in this organ but is giving only a symbolic clue to the trained practitioner to make conclusions on "physically unrelated" spiritual/mental issues.
